THE RED CROSS

The Red Cross in normal times has vindicated its right to be the agent of the country's quick sympathies. In presence of fire and flood, when there is no time to wait for the slow operation of official red tape, it has stepped in swiftly to gather and apply the means always freely given by the American people. Its organization was adequate for such occasional service; the people trusted it, and it failed them not. Now, there exists a condition beyond the grasp of human mind. Whole nations have been swept from their moorings by the deluge of world war; thousands have starved and thousands are wandering in desert places, without habitation, without shelter, without clothing, without the crudest instrumentalities of living. To the horrors and brutalities of so-called "civilized" war has been added wanton and senseless destruction by barbarous invaders armed with the perfections of modern applied science. It were enough to awaken the dullest sympathies, if there were only a work of rescue to be done, if only relief of the misery of millions of suffering humans were to be the object. But the enterprise is something vastly more urgent than that. The very foundations of civilized existence are at stake. In the trail of such things as are common over vast areas of Europe today, stalk famine and pestilence and the disintegration of social life. In France are upward of half a million cases of tuberculosis. Into such a plague-infested atmosphere the American boys will go. What will they bring back? And then what will all our laboriously built-up systems of prophylaxis and treatment here amount to? And this is only one aspect of the problem with which the Red Cross is confronted.

MANY ATTEND Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL CONVENTION

With a choice gathering of men of Medina and from various parts of the county, together with a wholesome number of visiting ladies and boys, and with a list of speakers that would grace a state gathering, the decennial convention session of the county Y. M. C. A. last Tuesday was truly a successful gathering. The meeting was held in the basement of the Congregational church, the ladies serving a well-arranged supper, served early in the evening and not as an extra meal. Dr. N. S. Everhard of Wadsworth, who has served as chairman of the county committee since its organization, and who has missed only one meeting, and that when he was out of the state, presided at this year's session. Fred W. Ramsey, president of the Cleveland Metal Products Co. and a very active man in Red Cross and various other patriotic temperance and religious organizations, was the principal speaker. He gave an extended, convincing address on Christian association work, emphasizing its unparalleled opportunity in the present crisis among enlisted men.

"Uncle" Robert Weidensall, senior honorary secretary of the International Committee and founder of the County Railroad and various other departments of the work, gave an intensely interesting, direct talk on his experiences and prophecy regarding the future of the work. His greatest hope is for the success of rural associations. Tom Lanham, well known here, was on the program with a short talk, in which he gave expression to his convictions as to the worth of county work and as to his experiences in the army work.

At the business session Geo. N. Taylor of Seville was elected as a new member of the county committee. Dr. Everhard, E. F. Gibbs, A. A. Bostwick and C. I. Miller were each re-elected for a term of three years. A budget of $2650 was approved with a recommendation that it be subscribed as quickly as possible, in order to provide for another year's work. Committees are at work in various parts of the county and are meeting with a ready response wherever the needs and opportunities are understood and appreciated. A great work evidently, is at hand.

W. C. T. U. PICNIC AT CHIPPEWA JUNE 30

Saturday, June 30, is the day set for the W. C. T. U. picnic at Chippewa Lake, when the losing side is to treat the county to a general good time as a result of the point contest which the unions have been engaged in since December.

Those on the winning side are as free as the air; those on the losing side are weighted down with care—and lunch baskets, and other kinds of entertainment. It should be added, however, that ladies bringing guests not members of any union, are expected to furnish something for the dinner.

Mrs. Florence Richard of Columbus, State President of the W. C. T. U., will give an address, and all who have heard her know it will be something worth while.

There will be a gold medal contest participated in by young people throughout the county, and good music is being planned.

Arrangements will be made for boat ing, bathing, and other forms of entertainment. The public is cordially invited to attend and help make this day one of profit, and a joy forever.

PREDICT HIGHER MILK

Medina may be paying 11 or 12 cents a quart for milk next winter.

Local milk dealers say that two conditions will be responsible for such a price. First the cost of producing milk. Second, the buying competition of milk condensing companies.

In order to fill government contracts for condensed milk the companies are overbidding the pure milk distributing companies. The allied soldiers in the trenches are going to want millions of cans of condensed milk and cream. Medina county producers state that before winter fairly begins these companies will be paying 50 per cent more than the present price.

work in a store, and in that way earn enough money to get their own books, or to clothe themselves.

When school is out, the boys can go out on the farms to work, or make gardens, or work in green-houses, or stores. They can gather iron, lead, brass or zinc, which are now selling from eight to twelve cents a pound, and they get these things in old junk piles.

The girls can crochet, embroider, or sew, and sell the articles after they are made. This would give them some money for such necessities as books and clothing. They may take care of children in the evening for parents who wish to attend dinner parties.

When school is out, the girls can hire out as hired girls, pick berries, make jelly and peddle the berries, jelly and vegetables, in the large cities. They may also help in the gardens and can the different vegetables. Grating horse-radish and selling at the groceries would pay for the trouble, and by saving it you could get something of use to you. Saving the papers and magazines will bring in some money to be put in your bank.

The people on the farm can earn money by raising all the crops, fruit and vegetables they can. The fruit and vegetables could be peddled in the large cities, where the people are glad to get them. One might make jelly and put in small jelly glasses and leave them at the homes of the people in town as a sample, putting your name and address on the glasses. You will find out that you can get large orders for jelly, keeping you busy as long as there is fruit.

Another good way to earn money is to pick flowers in the Spring, for the city schools and colleges that study flowers. It is not hard work, and they pay good prices.

They tell the kind of flowers they want and you are to pick usually a bushel of each kind.

One important habit in life is that of saving, and one of the easiest bad habits to contract is that of spending pennies. For we little realize that it takes only one hundred pennies to make a dollar.

If we begin early enough in life the habit of saving everything of value, it will not be long before we will be convinced that the saving of pennies is the most important and satisfactory habit we can form.

The housewife may be saving, by making different things out of the things that are left over after each meal. There are two million dollars worth of food thrown out every day in American homes, or seven hundred million dollars a year. Bread being fifteen cents a loaf, it would be cheaper for her to bake her own bread. If you have your own wheat, it would be cheaper for you to have a small hand-mill to grind your wheat into flour, which would save the money that is paid to the man that grinds the wheat into flour.

Having good, wholesome meals, with out any fancy dishes, saves expenses. Above all, avoid fancy dinner parties. Other members of the family could make a garden, if they have the land, which would save the expense of having to buy your vegetables. Avoid cheap amusements, candy, ice cream and other cheap things, which would amount to quite a little sum of money, if you saved it whenever you thought you would spend it.

Be very saving with your clothes, and when you do buy dresses or shoes, do not buy silks and satins, but clothes that will wear for sometime. Because if we are not careful, "our silks and satins will put out the kitchen fire."

Remember, if you make a rule to save so much a month, week, or even a penny a day, it would help create a bank account, and remember, "A penny saved is a penny earned."

The Interstate Mining Co. will hold a get-together meeting of stockholders and friends at K. of P. hall, Friday evening, June 29. A first-class entertainment and lunch will be served after the meeting. Bring the ladies.—ad

The dairyman's outlook is not at present a bright one. He now pays more for a ton of cow feed than he gets for a ton of milk.

Many herds from this vicinity have been sold off or at least thinned out, which is another reason milk is bound to advance.
